FREE PERSONAL CARE Government Legislation from 1 July 2002

While you are in residential care you will be entitled to £193.50 per week towards the cost of your personal care. This will be paid directly to the care home.

While Free Personal Care of £193.50 is provided to the care home on your behalf, you will no longer be eligible to receive Attendance Allowance, the care component of Disability Living Allowance or Personal Independence Payment. If you have been receiving any of these benefits, you must inform the Department for Work and Pensions of the change in your circumstances.

INTRODUCTION

This leaflet provides basic information about charging for permanent residential care.

Charging is not new; local authorities have been expected to charge the full economic cost for their own residential homes since 1948, subject to an assessment of a resident's means.

Since Community Care was introduced in April 1993, Local Authorities have also become responsible for residential care costs in voluntary and private homes.

CHARGING

Generally, most of a resident's personal income will go towards the cost of care including retirement pension, any occupational pension (half the occupational pension of a married person) and some Department for Work and Pensions benefits received.

A resident is allowed to retain £29.30 per week (2021/2022 rate) for personal expenses. This can be increased to include a contribution for the maintenance of a spouse.

 The first £18,000 of a resident's capital will be ignored when working out how much he/she should pay towards residential care. For any capital between £18,000 and £28,750 the local authority will treat the resident as having income which will be calculated at the weekly rate of £1 for every £250 or part £250.

As long as the resident has capital of over £28,750 he/ she will be expected to pay the full charge for permanent residential care. If your savings fall to £28,750 you should inform the Financial Assessment Officer immediately, as you will be entitled to a financial assessment and your care charges may be significantly reduced.

WHAT HAPPENS TO A PERSON'S HOUSE WHEN THEY ENTER RESIDENTIAL CARE ON A PERMANENT BASIS?

If the resident owns his/her home, the local authority will generally take the value into account when working out how much capital he/she has, however for the first 12 weeks following admission, the value will be disregarded from the assessment of capital.

(This rule applied from 09 April 2001).

Its value will also be ignored if one of the following is still living there:

- Husband or wife, civil partner or unmarried partner;
- Relative who is over 60;
- Relative under 16 (if resident has to support them);

- Relative who is incapacitated or disabled;
- Divorced or estranged partner, who is a lone parent with a dependant child.

The term 'relative' is as defined in Scottish Government Guidance issued to Local Authorities.

The local authority may also decide to ignore the value of the house in other circumstances, such as if the person who used to look after the resident still lives there.

WILL THE HOUSE BE SOLD?

Deferred payments were introduced in July 2002 under the Community Care and Health (Scotland) Act 2002. They allow people to avoid selling their homes upfront to meet their care home fees by entering into a legal agreement to have part of their fees paid by their local authority and the balance settled from their estate. (Scottish Executive Circular No 13/2004, dated 13 December 2004).

The Council operates a Deferred Payments Scheme and this will be explained to you during the financial assessment.

OTHER ASSETS

These will be taken into account in line with regulations and according to each person's individual circumstances.
